FADE IN:

INT. FATIMA'S HOME - PAKISTAN VILLAGE - NIGHT (1997)

A small, cramped space filled with cheap wooden furniture. The only appliance in the kitchen is a dirty sink exposed in the middle of a rusty counter. The only apparent object of value in sight is a cheap radio.

On a chair sits FATIMA, late 30s, sunken eyes of deep despair. She holds a hair, asleep. DAMROO STICK.

Behind her, a small bed, one lacking sheets and bedding. Her husband, HUSSEIN, mid 40s, sleeps upon it. His soft breathing audible now and again.

Lying on the floor by the bed is AIMMA, a Moppari Dog (shepherd), eleven years old. The tummy of her frail body swells as she takes deep, laboring breaths in her sleep.

Taking the stick, Fatima whips herself across the chest, over her white night garments, letting out a soft grunt of pain.

She whips herself once more. Then again and again. With each subsequent whip, her reaction becomes more muted but her eyes grow more teary.

Hussein sits up on the bed and simply stares at his wife.

Fatima drops the bamboo to the floor and runs a finger over her clothing, picking up a trickle of leaking blood.

The apartment HATTLES violently for a short few seconds. Dust from the ceiling drifts down, softly sprinkling against the ground and on Fatima's feet.

Neither her nor Hussein react to the shaking.

Turning her head, Fatima holds prolonged eye contact with Hussein who maintains the same sense of deep sorrow. A tragic, but routine understanding is acknowledged.

INT. FATIMA'S HOME - NIGHT - MOMENTS LATER

The squeaking of the cheap bed frame as Fatima climbs in next to the upright Hussein. A closer look of him shows him raggedy visage, prominent wrinkles, and messy grey hair.

Fatima remains sitting as well, towards the front edge, trying to avoid having to look at her husband who inches closer to her.
